

ON THE COVER:

Mike Deffendoll and his company employees added 10 tons capacity to the longest single span covered bridge in the United States that is still in use for vehicular traffic. It is an all-wood arch bridge 227 feet in length. Removal, restoration and replacement of the structure occurred from February to September 2007. Cost of the project was $170,000. The bridge is located in Parke County Indiana, five miles north of Rockville, Indiana. This move received the Longest Structure Moved and Judges Awards in the 2008 IASM Awards Competition. See pages 47 and 55.
